

Market Review

Global equities (as measured by the MSCI All Country World Index<sup>1</sup>) rose for a third consecutive quarter, advancing 14.68% despite weak economic news and surging COVID-19 caseloads. Positive vaccine news and the conclusion of the U.S. elections in early November further strengthened the stimulus-driven rally, bolstering value-oriented market segments and shifting leadership away from a narrow group of U.S. large-caps. Value stocks outperformed growth stocks for the period, while small-caps outperformed large-caps and commodity prices ticked upward. Emerging Markets outperformed Developed Markets, with both benefiting from the prospect of economic recovery and increased trade activity. Governments in the EU and the United States reached compromise on relief and recovery packages with commitments of additional monetary stimulus in the new year.

QVS Factor Performance

The RS Global team's proprietary QVS (Quality, Value and Sentiment) Model evaluates over 10,000 global companies in search of the best investment opportunities. It is designed to identify companies that have the potential to consistently create shareholder value, are reasonably valued, and exhibit favorable market sentiment. The model helps us focus our resources, as we conduct additional research only on companies with the strongest model recommendations.

Value was a positive signal across most regions in the fourth quarter, while our Quality factor broadly underperformed. The model worked best in Emerging Markets in the period, driven by the strong performance of the Value and Sentiment factors in the region. A strong Sentiment factor supported positive model performance in Asia/Pac x Japan and Japan. The model did not work as well in the United Kingdom and Europe, where Quality and Sentiment were both weak.

Performance and Positioning

The Victory RS Global Strategy returned +13.62% (net), while its benchmark, the MSCI All Country World Index (net) (the "Index"), advanced +14.68%.

Negative stock selection in the Consumer Discretionary, Financials and Information Technology sectors detracted from relative performance, as did the Strategy's allocation to cash. Positive stock selection in Industrials and overweight allocations in Energy and Financials aided relative results. From a regional perspective, Strategy investments in North America, Asia/Pacific ex Japan, and Japan detracted from relative performance, while stock selection was positive in the United Kingdom and Emerging Markets. Country-level detractors included the United States and Sweden, while positive contributors included Norway and Korea.

Individual detractors from relative performance included S&P Global, a U.S. supplier of financial markets ratings and data, and U.S. biotechnology company Amgen Inc. The Strategy also lost relative performance from not owning Tesla, Inc., a U.S. provider of electric vehicles and energy storage systems that had strong returns within the Index.

Positive contributors for the period included Korean electronics provider Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd., and HD Supply Holdings, Inc., a U.S. provider of industrial services that was acquired by The Home Depot, Inc. in late 2020. The Strategy also benefited from not owning Chinese multinational technology company Alibaba Group Holding Ltd., which had negative returns within the Index.

Outlook

We expect the trajectory of the COVID-19 pandemic to weigh heavily on market prospects in 2021. While positive vaccine news provided a boost to market returns in the fourth quarter, the twin tasks of distributing vaccines efficiently and containing virus spread in the meantime pose an ongoing risk to economic activity. Stimulus, however well received in the near term, must eventually give way to a recovery in economic growth and corporate earnings. Some believe that such a recovery is already priced into equity shares, as capital has shifted toward sectors that would benefit from economic growth. In any event, for us, what is most important is to stay the course and be true to our quality-oriented investment process. We anticipate a prolonged period of elevated market volatility and will stay vigilant when constructing our portfolios, remaining sector- and region-neutral, as we believe that strong risk management should stand at the forefront. Making correct macro allocation calls can be immensely challenging; therefore, we do not forecast regional performance. In our view, stock selection can be far more impactful to strategy performance than allocation. As always, we thank you for your strong interest and continued investment, and please stay safe!

We thank you for your continued support.

Sincerely,

The Victory RS Global Markets Team

The RS Global Composite combines data-driven discipline with fundamental analysis in seeking to capture information inefficiencies in global companies across the market capitalization spectrum in order to provide a consistent, diversified return stream over market cycles. The benchmark is the MSCI All Country World Index (Net). The composite was created per inception date in the Performance Table above.

Gross-of-fees returns are presented before management and custodial fees but after all trading expenses. Net-of fees returns are calculated by deducting 1/12 of the highest tier of the standard fee schedule in effect for the period noted (the model fee). The composite model fee for each period is either the highest tier of the current fee schedule or a higher value, whichever is required to ensure the model composite net-of-fee return is lower than or equity to the composite net-of-fee return calculated using actual fees. Actual fees may vary depending on, among other things, the applicable fee schedule and portfolio size. The firm's fees are available on request and may be found on Part II of its Form ADV.
