

VICTORY RS GLOBAL FUND QUARTERLY COMMENTARY

As of September 30, 2020

Market Review

Global equities (as measured by the MSCI All Country World Index<sup>1</sup>) continued to surge off their March lows in the third quarter, advancing 8.13% for the period and briefly touching a new all-time high in early September before a period of consolidation over the remainder of the month. Though economic output and corporate earnings remain subdued, signs of a recovery across regions fueled market gains in July and August, as COVID-19 restrictions eased and governmental (and, especially, central bank) support remained steadfast. September, however, ushered in a market pullback, with virus hot spots popping up in Europe and parts of Asia as well as a breakdown of stimulus talks in the US. Emerging Markets and North America were the stronger performing regions during the third quarter, while the United Kingdom and Asia/Pacific ex Japan regions lagged for the period.

QVS Factor Performance

In this section, we offer insight into the factors driving market performance from a quantitative point of view. The RS Global Markets team's proprietary QVS (Quality, Value and Sentiment) Model scours the globe, screening over 10,000 companies while looking for the best investment opportunities. It is designed to identify companies that have the potential to consistently create shareholder value, are reasonably valued, and exhibit favorable market sentiment. We continually use this quantitative model to help us focus our resources and fundamental research on those companies with the highest probability of outperformance.

Our model performed best in the United Kingdom and Europe in the third quarter, driven by the strong performance of the Sentiment and Quality factors in those regions. The model did not work as well in Japan and Emerging Markets, where Sentiment was weak. Quality was the most consistent factor during the quarter, especially in the month of September, when it was positive across regions. The Value factor continued to underperform despite occasional strength in certain areas.

Performance and Positioning

The Victory RS Global Fund (the "Fund") returned +7.72% (Class A Shares at net asset value), while its benchmark, the MSCI All Country World Index (net) (the "Index"), advanced +8.13%.

Negative stock selection and a small underweight in the Consumer Discretionary sector detracted from relative performance, as did negative selection in the Communication Services and Health Care sectors. Positive stock selection in Industrials, Information Technology and Materials aided relative results. From a regional perspective, Fund investments in Asia/Pacific ex Japan and Emerging Markets detracted from relative performance, while stock selection was positive in the United Kingdom, Japan and Europe. Country-level detractors included Hong Kong and the United States, while positive contributors included Sweden and China.

Individual detractors from relative performance included Cisco Systems, a US networking technology provider; Chinese commercial banking and financial services firm Industrial and Commercial Bank of China Limited; and Indonesian telecommunications conglomerate PT Telekomunikasi Indonesia (Persero) Tbk.

Positive contributors for the period included US-based graphics processing leader NVIDIA Corporation, Swedish chemical company Nolato AB, and Chinese condiment producer Foshan Haitian Flavouring & Food Co., Ltd.

Outlook

We anticipate COVID-19 trends will continue to dictate market movements, with localized case declines and resurgences impacting both economic activity and market returns across geographies. The US election in November also presents significant uncertainty, with large implications for tax policy and trade relations, and potentially the broadly destabilizing effects of a "contested" presidential race. Also, extremely high valuations for US growth stocks have some anticipating a rotation of market leadership toward value-oriented sectors and away from US stocks generally. In any event, for us, what is most important is to stay the course and be true to our quality-oriented investment process. We expect market volatility to remain elevated for a prolonged period and will remain vigilant when constructing our portfolios, remaining sector- and region-neutral, as we believe that strong risk management should remain at the forefront. Making correct macro allocation calls can be immensely challenging; therefore, we do not forecast regional performance. In our view, stock selection can be far more impactful to strategy performance than allocation. As always, we thank you for your strong interest and continued investment, and please stay safe!

We thank you for your continued support.

Sincerely,

The Victory RS Global Markets Team
